WRITINGS ON THE WALL

©1984 Diana Lynne

Everything is so routine,
The magic's gone for us it seems.
When I look into your eyes,
I see a stranger I don't recognize.
No longer can I hide,
The emptiness I feel inside.
I guess the Writings On The Wall.
There's no love here at all.

Our expectations were too high,
From a self-created hell, we couldn't hide.
Anger, disillusionment, despair,
Became too much for either one of us to bear.
There is no point in hanging on,
To faded dreams when love is gone.
In the cold light of reality,
The answer's all too plain to see.

Writings On The Wall,
There's no love. (No love!) No love here at all.
Writings On The Wall.
Writings On The Wall.
No love. (No love!) No love. (No love!)
No love here at all.
The Writings On the Wall.

The Writings On The Wall.
The Writings On The Wall.
